

Points of Discussion

1. From talking lively in front of children to negotiating formally in front of high officials, MSI's teachers are required to possess many skills as frontline workers. What kind of skills and character do you think that the frontline workers should have?
2. What do you think about the local government requesting help and support from Mustard Seed?
3. What kind of changes would you like to see in the lives of children in the North-eastern Archipelago and how can you be a part of those changes?
4. Are there any questions you have about the work? What would you like to understand better?
