

Points of Discussion

1. The Board of Education's data shows that 1,3 million of children on the Island of Promise dropout by the time they reach high school, and more than 400 thousand are still struggling with literacy. Do you think that schools and young teachers can make a difference?
2. Let's discuss how the support from North America has reached these remote villages. What is your advice so we can help more children gain access to education and maximize their potential?
3. What kind of changes would you like to see in the lives of children on the Island of Promise and how can you be a part of those changes?
4. Is there any questions do you have about the work? What would you like to learn or understand better?
